The CTU MIAS School of Business invites you to participate in the Fourth Annual Albín Bráf Conference, to be held on May 29, 2019 in Prague.

Students in economics, business and other interdisciplinary programs taught at technical universities are herewith offered an opportunity to present and discuss their research results, experience the topics, methods and applications implemented at different institutions, as well as to share insights and establish new contacts. We thus take up the long tradition in economics teaching at the Czech Technical University in Prague, associated with the person of the eminent Czech economist Albín Bráf (1851-1912).

In 2019, the conference includes a panel dedicated to 100 years of economic programs at the CTU. Papers are therefore invited also on related topics, including economic history, developments in education and science policy, or the social aspects of education.

Papers received in English, Czech or Slovak will be peer-reviewed and published in the Conference Proceedings, and - upon their presentation in conference sections - the best papers by students will receive cash awards.

Upon previous approval by the Organizing Committee, presentations of accepted papers by participants outside the CTU may take the form of posters.

Preliminary registrations, including the participants' names and affiliations and the title of the paper, should be submitted by March 15, 2019 to braf@muvs.cvut.cz, where applicants will receive further information on conference organization and paper format. Full papers should then be submitted for review by April 13, 2019.

Thanks to the generous support of the Czech Technical University in Prague and the International Visegrad Fund, participants will be granted full relief of registration fees.
